Advice and Justification

[Detail the nature of the advice request, response and justification, including any additional evidence considered]

Thank you for your query.

Having examined the available evidence, the difficulties that are described by  would appear to be consistent with Asperger's Syndrome and BiPolar Disorder. Aspergers is a developmental disorder that tends to manifest difficulties with social awareness and interaction rather than any significant cognitive impairment. Nor would any difficulties with cognition be expected in association with her bipolar disorder. The original descriptors would appear to be correctly awarded. No changes are required.
